

Creative Calverley

Something rather special

Creative Calverley is a “not for profit” organisation established to bring people together and showcase skills and talent within the community. On the first Saturday of each month, from 10.00am, at the Thornhill Arms, Calverley, we hold a makers fair of locally made gifts and food.

The stalls include locally produced bread, cakes, vegetables and honey as well as handmade and homemade jewellery, cards, accessories and glassware (amongst others). Often in line with the seasons, the stalls change, no two months are the same.

Creative Calverley also put on workshops such as crocheting, chess, gardening and candle making (and others) with the aim of encouraging people of all ages to learn new skills, share their knowledge and enjoy themselves at a low, or no, cost.

Events such as a ceilidh, community cinema, vintage fair and Sunday walks are being established and will be staged in and around the village to encourage people of all ages to come together and share fun.

If you are inspired to join in, or have suggestions for workshops/events that you would support, please contact Gael Timbers on 0776 468 2560, view the Creative Calverley website www.creativecalverley.co.uk or email us at info@creativecalverley.co.uk.

St Gemma's Hospice in Leeds provides specialist medical and nursing care for people with life threatening illnesses, predominantly cancer, along with support for their families.

St Gemma's welcomes and provides care for people of all faiths and none. The staff focus care around the needs of the individual and are respectful of all beliefs, religions and cultures.

St Gemma's is Creative Calverley's nominated charity of 2012.
